

Submit Your Blogs Free Of Cost

A blog is a website which is regularly updated by an individual or an entity. In the recent years the popularity of blogs has increased and there are various blogs websites. Some companies update their own blogs regularly while some allow the visitors to submit their posts. By submitting their blogs; the users get opportunity to share their opinions.

There are various purposes of submitting blogs like some companies regulate these websites to market their products and services while some blogs are very informative.

There are various types of blogs which are generally different on the basis of the type of content and they way the content is delivered or written. To submit blogs; the users can make their free logins. The first type of blogs is personal blogs which are considered as the ongoing diary or commentaries by individuals. It is most common type of blog and it is more traditional.

It is not necessary that personal blogs are visited by the users rather these blogs are maintained by individuals for their own satisfaction. One example of a personal blog is microblogging which is getting very popular. Twitter is a microblogging website which is very famous among the young generation because it actually provides a way to submit blogs, share thoughts and interacting with friends.

Another famous types of blogs are corporate blogs which can be private or professional and usually people cannot submit blogs on these blog websites. There are various reasons because of which corporate blogs are created like for marketing branding and public relations. These blogs really provide cheap form of marketing to the companies. Question blogs form another category of blogs where the answers to the questions are given. The individuals submit the questions in the form of a submittal form, via mails or telephones or VOIP.

One popular kind of blog is vlog which comprises of videos and the one which comprises of links is known as linklog. A blog which consists of portfolio of sketches is known as sketchblog while the one which contains photos is known as photoblog. One famous kind of blogs is known as typecast blogs which are written on the typewriters and are then scanned. All these blogs which involve some media are known as media type blogs.

In the submit blogs category, you may also find kinds of blogs on the basis of device which is used to compose the blog like a blog written by a mobile device is known as moblog. Finally, there are different blogs categorized on the basis of genre like political blogs, travel blogs, niche blogs, fashion blogs and music blogs.

Therefore, blog website provide a way to users to submit blogs according to their interest and skills. One interesting thing about blogs is that there is a comment section at the end of the blogs, where the readers can comment their views after reading the blogs.

About the Author

See more about how to blog, link to Blogskinny.com.

Source: <http://ArticleJoy9.com>